1) Suggestion Stage

Game description and board information ...

Conversation between France and Austria in Winter 1904:

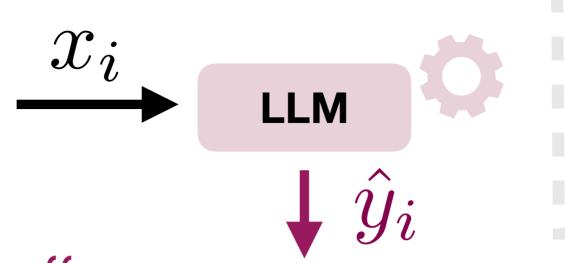

- 0 France: This game is going very well for you. You have zero threats and allies all around you. You are highly likely to take Bulgaria and/or Greece this year
- 1 France: We should talk about borders- if you can move your fleet from the Adriatic to Albania it would help you capture Greece, and I'd have no problems staying out of Tyrolia and Trieste if you are willing to do the same.

. . .

Which message numbers are lies? Give reasons why.

Textual repr. of game context Instruction prompts

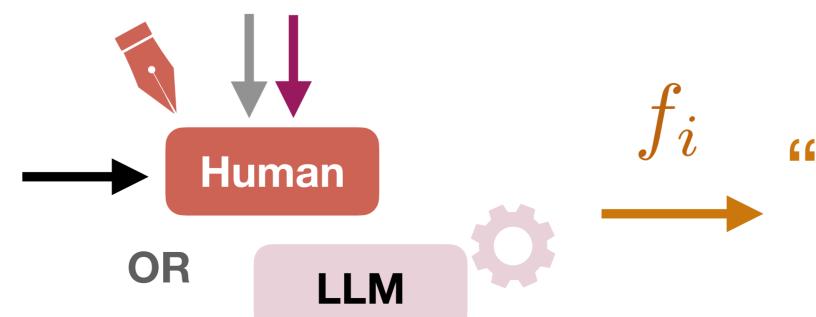

3) Modification Stage

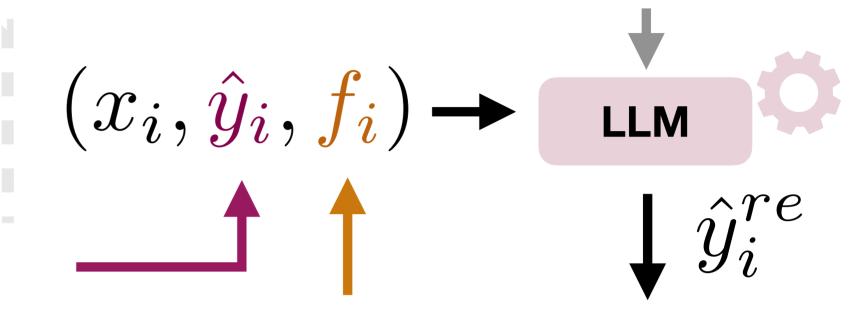

O and 1 are both lies. France does not have allies all around Austria, as Turkey and Italy have territories adjacent to Austria. Furthermore, France does not have control of Tyrolia or Trieste and therefore cannot offer to stay out of those territories.

2) Feedback Collection Stage

Your goal is to give feedback on the previous prediction and reasoning...

Given this feedback on the initial prediction, which messages do you still think are lies? Give reasons why.

Message 0 is not a lie. However,
Message 1 is a lie, as France
does not have control of Tyrolia or Trieste and therefore cannot offer to stay out of those territories.

The logic for Message 1 is good. However, message 0 is misinterpreted. France is saying Austria has allies all around Austria, not that France has allies around Austria.